CITIZEN'S COMMENTS – None

COMMUNICATIONS TO COMMISSION – None

EVENTS & PUBLIC RELATIONS – None

FINANCIAL UPDATES

Chair Kilbourn directed attention to the provided Clay Street Cemetery financial account report included in the agenda packet. J. Jones noted that a recent expense of $425 for the invoice associated with Fred Johnston, from Quiring Monuments, was not reflected in the report. She explained that Chief Financial Officer Bell had confirmed that the check went out on December 8, and the report cut off date was November 9. After making that adjustment, she indicated that the balance of the account is $2,209.45.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

a) Sample Sign Layout

J. Jones stated that they are waiting for the start of next summer to get a clean image of the new white crosses installed in 2023 and that once they have that, she will share a new sample graphic of the sign.

b) Quiring Monuments Orders

Chair Kilbourn indicated that they had completed a second round of review for the current batch of markers. J. Richardson confirmed that she had found no errors in the file that had been provided. J. Jones noted that the account representative they have had for years is retiring, and they are now working with a new person at the company. She explained that Quiring Monuments had come back with punctuation adjustments for consistency throughout the order, which they were amenable to; however, the most recent email from the company included a link to review the order, but none of the updates from the last communication had been implemented. Chair Kilbourn asked to confirm that the order was already fully paid. J. Jones indicated that it was. Deputy Clerk Chase confirmed that the purchase was made with the remaining funds in the capital projects account within the last couple months.

NEW BUSINESS

a) Request to City Council for Supplemental Funds ($10,000) for Additional Markers

J. Jones indicated that the Discretionary Fund Grant award amounts still had to be approved by the City Council, but there is rarely, if ever, any hold up at that step. Chair Kilbourn shared that a recent newspaper article noted that one applicant received zero funding this year after the Discretionary Fund Committee's voting process and how more applications were denied than in typical years due to incomplete applications. She expressed appreciation for J. Jones' diligence in completing the process every year and stated that it is not something to take for granted. DC Chase confirmed that the Commission's award amount was $12,254.

Chair Kilbourn explained that with this amount, barring any price increases, the Commission should be able to complete about 40 markers in 2024. She asked whether $10,000 was the appropriate amount to request, given that the average price per marker was around $300 and there are other associated expenses. J. Jones stated she believes that J. Jacobson's suggestion to request $10,000 is prudent.

Chair Kilbourn acknowledged that she is unsure where the funds come from. J. Jacobson explained that there are a variety of sources and that, for a request like this, it would likely come from rollover, unexpended funds from 2023, which could be reallocated into the 2024 budget. He indicated that CFO Bell would begin preparing a budget amendment in February to present to the Council and that before then, the Commission could discuss its capital projects request with the Mayor.

Chair Kilbourn shared that she wrote a letter to members of the Council about the needs of the Commission and received a response from one individual who indicated a willingness to consider such a request, but only after it was determined how much they would receive from the Discretionary Grant process. J. Jacobson explained that depending on what the budget amendment entails, the Councilmember could propose an amendment when it is presented to the Council to include the Commission's request for $10,000. Chair Kilbourn stated that she would be willing to have some of those conversations within the week and asked for consensus from the Commission members for this approach and the amount discussed. No objections were voiced.

b) Set Date for Pre-Memorial Day Cemetery Clean-Up

Chair Kilbourn indicated that she would like Saturday, May 18 to be the annual clean-up day at the cemetery. She expressed some concern at the chance of snow still being a possibility on that weekend but that pushing it to May 25 would be problematic as that would fall on Memorial Day weekend. Several Commission members voiced their support for the May 18 date. Chair Kilbourn asked that DC Chase ensure that the date be added to the City’s calendar and that he create a Facebook post and/or event to generate additional volunteers. J. Jacobson stated that, depending on the timing of snow melt in the spring, he could also direct Public Works personnel to make visits to the cemetery as much as possible, prior to May 18, to prepare the cemetery for the clean-up day.

J. Jacobson mentioned that it may be helpful to post the event on the “Just Serve” website. J. Jones confirmed that she will post to that website, help ensure the Facebook effort reaches more people, and make sure there is a plug over the radio. Chair Kilbourn clarified that they will plan the clean-up day for 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

OPEN AGENDA – None

GARDEN SEAT IN CEMETERY BY H. F. PAGE

A beautiful garden seat, topped with synthetic marble, has been donated to the Fairbanks cemetery by H. F. Page, masonry and ceramic worker.

Made by Mr. Page at his plant, Richardson at Noble, this artistic piece of work fits well in the improvements that are being carried out by various individuals interested in beautifying the burial ground.

Synthetic Marble

The garden seat, well based on concrete, is 5 feet long and 18 inches wide. The synthetic marble top is a composition of marble chips and marble dust, polished and tumbled smooth with natural stone tumbles.

Many of the ornamental markers on graves in the Fairbanks cemetery have been designed and executed by Mr. Page. Ornamental cement work is his specialty, and his synthetic marble work adds considerably to the beauty of the cemetery. In addition, he supplies bronze name plates for the graves.

Working at his plant, he turns out garden pottery--vases and urns, and as a sideline has developed the art of making mantelpieces for fireplaces--handsome jobs in colors to match the interiors of the rooms they will adorn.

Because of the demand for safer chimneys, he also has produced a line of reinforced concrete chimney blocks—a composition through which the creosote from birch wood fires will not penetrate. Two double strands of heavy barbed wire comprise the reinforcing. The blocks are made of cement, sand and screened gravel, and when mounted are sealed together with a special mix. The interior diameter of the chimney is 10 inches.

With all these products, Mr. Page is a practical artist—a Fairbanksan who is making something more than a trade of his masonry work.

Harlin Forest Page created many of the monuments and markers in Clay St and Birch Hill Cemeteries in about 1938-1941.

His granddaughter Cheryl Taylor Pollard provided these photos of his work. Some photos may provide clues to missing markers. She will send more photos if they are found. She has many negatives of the time frame.
